Engaging Parents in Children's LEARNING

EPiC Talk for parents and carers of children 0-5

23rd June 2016, 5pm—7pm

Language is an important skill for life that allows a person to communicate with others. Children begin to develop language even before they can use words. By talking often with children, adults can support children's language development and help give them a flying start in life.

This exciting two-hour session aims to show how parents can support their children's language development by using simple strategies. The session will be highly interactive, and as well as exploring relevant theory, it will aim to give parents practical ideas for supporting their child's early speech.

When: 23 June 2016, 5pm—7pm

Venue: University of Worcester, St John's Campus,
Worcester

Fee: £20 per delegate
