Recommended Reads chosen for children by children from Worcester City Schools

Rationale

'There is no such thing as someone who doesn't like reading, it is just that they haven't found the books they like yet.'

At the beginning of the school year a group of English leaders from Worcester City schools met to discuss and explore 'reading' within their schools. The discussion eventually led to statutory assessments particularly at Key Stage 2—it was generally felt that children needed to have greater stamina in order to complete the reading. The more successful children appeared to be the children who regularly read. This, in turn, led to a discussion of the types of texts children read, either for learning or for pleasure, or both. After much debate it was agreed that the English group would focus on how to promote reading for pleasure across the schools. Therefore we set upon a plan.

- 1. Create a list of reads which the children from Worcester would recommend to each other. This was vital as it was not to be publisher or mainly adult led.
- 2. Each leader returned to their schools to collect the children's recommendations.
- 3. We met a few months later and most schools had contributed; we began to review and to 'curate' the collection.
- 4. It was clear that any book by Julia Donaldson is a favourite (unsurprisingly, the Gruffalo had the most recommendations for the younger children) and the popularity of David Walliams as an author is evident.
- 5. Teachers were also keen to add their own recommendations so it was felt around 10 of the titles would be their selection.
- Finally one of the members of the group co-ordinated, curated and presented the final lists of 100 recommendations for EYFS; 100 recommendations for Key Stage One; 100 recommendations for Lower Key Stage Two; and 100 recommendations for Upper Key Stage Two.
- 7. The lists are not exclusive to their age groups—we know a lot of older children who for 'pure pleasure' will pick a picture book. Likewise there are younger children who love a challenge!
